Leaders Eat Last: Why Some Teams Pull Together and Others Don't

Imagine a world where almost everyone wakes up inspired to go to work, feels trusted and valued during the day, then returns home feeling fulfilled. This is not a crazy, idealized nothing. Today in many successful organizations, great leaders are creating environments in which people work together to do remarkable things. When it matters most organizations lead by leaders who are willing to eat last are rewarded with deeply loyal colleagues who will stop at nothing to advance their leader's vision and their organization's interest. If you are a leader that desires an organization that has impact that goes beyond your years this is a message you wont want to miss!

Cory Lichy

It is amazing to watch a speaker take control of the audience and hold the attention of the entire group while teaching life lessons. As a speaker who reaches many people each year, Cory Lichy knows how to captivate a crowd. He possesses the unique ability to infuse humor, inspiration, and content into a message that will leave a lasting impact on your group. He does not simply speak to the audience, he connects with them in a way that very few speakers can.

As 1999 graduate of South Dakota State University this South Dakota native has traveled many roads. Cory has ten plus years of classroom experience with children, has trained in multiple capacities and has developed his own speaking entity PrimeTime Presentations. Cory's desire is to inspire his audiences to live their lives with gusto and passion while emphasizing their strengths and talents. His personal story, humor, and inspiration have left people talking for days
